

Journal of Medical Safety

IARMM Official Journal (Print version)

CONTENT

(Opinion)

“Getting it Right: Mitigating Risk by the Development of Anti-Fragility”

Tony Bendell (Services Ltd, Nottingham UK)

“Patient Safety in Mental Health – Key Challenges”

A. Langa (Mental Health Services NHS Lanarkshire, Scotland)

(Original)

“Patient Safety in the Surgical Area - Nursing Intervention using the Checklist Instead of Using Descriptive Records”

Blanca Torres Manrique ¹, Loreto Macia Soler ², Joaquín José Uris Selles ³ (1. Nursing Department. University of Cantabria. Spain. 2. University of Jaime I. Castellon de la Plana. Spain. 3. University of Alicante. Spain)

“The Experimental Introduction of the Surgical Safety Checklist in the OR of the New Surgical Building ‘Polo Chirurgico P. Confortini’ of the Borgo Trento Hospital, Azienda Ospedaliera UniversitariaIntegrata of Verona, Italy ”

Giovanna Ghirlanda, Pierpaolo Benetollo, Monica Lavarini, Ranieri Poli, Stefano Tardivo (Azienda Ospedaliera Universitaria Integrata di Verona, Italy)

“Nurses’ Knowledge and Standards of Tracheostomy Care Since the Introduction of a Tracheostomy Safety Programme”

Norton J.¹, Kieilty L.¹, Codd M.¹, Corrigan H.², Brady A-M.³ (1St. James’s Hospital, Dublin, Ireland. 2Trinity College Dublin & St. James’s Hospital. 3School of Nursing & Midwifery, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland)

(Short Communication)

“Quantifying Harm in Healthcare - Revisiting Harm Scales”

Daniel L. Cohen & Mark Linggood (Datix Ltd. UK)

“The Importance of Nurses’ Training in Reducing the Incidence of Phlebitis in Patients with Peripheral Intravenous Catheters”

Anabela Salgueiro-Oliveira & Pedro Parreira (Nursing School of Coimbra, Portugal)

(Letter to Editor)

“Evidence-Based Care and Risk Avoidance”

Daniel L. Cohen (Datix Ltd., UK)

